Give your family the gift of a plan

Thinking about final expenses is usually not easy for any of us. It's not the most exciting topic in your day-to-day life or even one that may ever cross your mind. But, consider this:

The average funeral today costs over $6,000, not including any additional costs for medical bills or outstanding debts.

- ◆ How will your bills and funeral expenses be paid?
- ◆ Who will pay for any hospital or outstanding medical bills?
- ◆ Could your family afford to pay for these bills without sacrificing their retirement or other savings?

Why not give your family the gift of a plan - purchase life insurance to help protect your family from having to spend their hard-earned savings on your final expenses. It can be surprisingly affordable and can help provide you with the comfort and security in knowing that you may not leave them with a financial burden.

Use the worksheet below to help you talk to your insurance advisor about which policy will best suit you and what amount of death benefit will fit your needs.
